Anne is a past president of the Florida Watercolor Society, the Florida Sun Coast watercolor society, and Art Center Manatee. Anne teaches workshops and judges competitive shows all over the U.S. and Canada. Anne's original paintings and giclee prints can be found at AGAMI Artist Guild of Anna Maria on Anna Maria Island, and the Studio on Pine Ave Anna Maria Island.

Anne had long ago set some goals for herself – her bucket list you might say – primarily the AWS, NWS signature status. In 2013, she was lucky enough to achieve these goals and continued to paint – but not with the excitement and the thrill it once had for her. She realized something was missing and took a good look at what was happening in today's art world. A computer was being used by many artists in intriguing and interesting ways, and she decided to hire someone to take the fear and loathing she had for the machine away.

She began taking images, some of which were incredibly old, and manipulated them to come up with exciting results that put the fire back into her painting. These images had a "wow" factor that was missing from her compositions and paintings. She has spent a couple of years working with her enhanced images and with opaque watercolors, and these paintings have been successful for her in competitions and sales. Mission watercolors have some beautiful tube grays, and she began experimenting by adding transparent watercolor to tint the tube grays, along with mixing paints by using opaque white watercolor.

Anne has achieved Signature status in seven National Watercolor Societies, not including the holy grail for watercolorists: AWS and NWS. She has won over 100 awards from competitive shows both locally and nationally. Her recent awards have been in National Watercolor Society, Southwest Watercolor Society, San Diego Watercolor Society.

Anne began painting in oils as a child and was mentored by Alexander Luke, one of the premier Canadian artists. She moved to Florida in 1998 and began working in watercolor. She is very influenced by the light and color she finds in Florida, and she has honed her skills with many, many hours of painting. She has found an art-rich environment in Florida and feels that the encouragement and friendship of the local artists are a big part of her success. She is an acclaimed mentor and true master teacher. She has been an "art mom" to her students, and many have gone on to become accomplished and award-winning artists themselves. She has conducted over 100 workshops and is in demand as a juror for many exhibitions.
